Could it be this seasonally warm weather is keeping our fire stats low this winter? It seems every year around the holidays we see an increase in house fires but not the case this year in our area. The normal increase around the holidays can be contributed to the cooler weather and the need to use furnaces and space heaters to keep us warm. Without the need to warm our homes there is less potential for accidents or malfunctions of our heating equipment.

According to fire statistics, heating equipment in the winter is the second leading cause of home fires, cooking fires is number one. If your home relies on a furnace during the winter, call a professional to get it inspected once a year to ensure it is running properly.

The Nokomis Fire Department wishes everyone a safe and happy new year.

Proud to Serve,

Steve Kona, Fire Chief
